

Action Pack 10

Tenth Grade Activity Book

Edwina Johnson

Action Pack is a twelve-level course for Jordanian students, leading them from the Basic to the Secondary stage. It is based on the most modern methods of teaching language, combining a topic-based approach with functional language practice, careful attention to grammar and vocabulary and a comprehensive skills syllabus.

This level is for Grade 10 students.

The Action Pack series offers learners:

- modern, interesting and relevant topics
- a clear and systematic approach to grammar, with thorough practice
- integrated skills which work with a particular focus on reading and writing
- consistent building and recycling of vocabulary
- special sections devoted to functional and situational language
- project work at the end of every module
- the development of critical thinking skills

Each level of Action Pack consists of a Student's Book, an Audio Cassette or CD, an Activity Book and a comprehensive Teacher's Book.

Jimmy Tomczak, from Michigan, USA, enjoyed walking in the countryside, but he couldn't find the right shoes to wear. Most good quality, lightweight shoes cost too much, so he decided to (1) _____ his own product.

One day, he was helping a builder to repair a roof of a house. Instead of using expensive material, they used old advertising boards, which were made of a lightweight strong plastic. After six months, the roof was still in good condition. The plastic proved to be strong as well as waterproof. That encouraged Jimmy to (2) _____ more about this material and to use it in his shoe production.

He created 20 shoe models before he was satisfied with the final design and could (3) _____ a business.

At first, he didn't sell his shoes to (4) _____ a profit, but after a while, he managed to (5) _____ the right costs in order to set a price. All the sandals are made locally, using local workers. Now Jimmy's business is very successful. He is selling about 1,000 pairs of his special shoes every month.

6 Answer the following questions about Jimmy Tomczak's invention.

1 Why did Jimmy want to produce his own shoes?

2 What did Jimmy think of the plastic advertising boards?

3 How do we know that Jimmy's product is ethical and environmentally friendly?

4 Why would anyone buy Jimmy's shoes? Explain.

VOCABULARY

4 Complete the text about rainforests with the nouns or adjectives from the box.

extinct insects logging volcano oxygen plants species surface tropical

Although rainforests cover only a small area of Earth's (1) surface, they contain more than half of the world's plant and animal (2) _____. Tropical
5 rainforests breathe in carbon dioxide and breathe out (3) _____ every day, so they help to keep Earth cool. As many as 30 million species of plants and animals live in the four 'layers' of (4) _____
10 rainforests.

The tallest trees make up the top layer. There is a lot of sunlight here, and eagles, monkeys and butterflies live in the trees.

Underneath this top layer, the lower
15 trees form a 'roof' over the area below. The leaves, flowers and fruit that grow there provide food for monkeys, birds and amphibians like tree frogs. Not much sunlight reaches the third layer, so here
20 plants have even larger leaves to reach the light. Many animals live here including jaguars and leopards, along with many tiny (5) _____ – ants and caterpillars.

Lower down, on the forest floor, it is very 25 dark and hardly any plants grow there – but it is home to the largest animals. Unfortunately, every year (6) _____ destroys around 200,000 square kilometres of rainforest. The rainforest and 30 many of the creatures and (7) _____ in it are in danger of becoming (8) _____.

We need to conserve this important and valuable part of our planet.

5 Find words in the text with the following meanings:

- 1 air that we breathe oxygen
- 2 cutting down trees _____
- 3 top layer of something _____
- 4 varieties or types of animals or plants _____

- 4 Which of the above animals is an insect? Use the word to write your own sentence. _____:

READING

7 Read the text, and then find the correct sentences (a–d) for each gap (1–4) in the text.

Birds in Jordan

(1) _____. Millions of birds pass through Jordanian skies each year, some of which stop to spend the winter and others to feed, drink or rest before moving on with their journeys.

Some of the most important natural landscapes to spot migrating birds are the Gulf of Aqaba, the Dead Sea, Wadi Araba and the Jordan Valley. Some examples of those birds are small Warblers, huge White Storks and colourful Rollers and Bee-eaters.

(2) _____.

Some people would never imagine how Jordan, with its many deserts, could be a habitat for so many different species of birds. (3) _____. For example, there exist 13 species of lark that have brown feathers. Their feathers help them to hide easily among the desert's rocks and sand.

Unfortunately, the Houbara Bustard, which was an important member of the Jordanian desert in the past, is now extinct because of hunting. This is one example of the many other birds and animals that are in danger. (4) _____.

- a That is why we should try and stop this criminal act before it is too late!
- b However, over the years, some birds learnt to adapt to the desert climate and are now considered to be desert species.
- c Since Jordan is located on one of the main flyways of the world, it is becoming more popular with bird watchers.
- d However, birds of prey such as eagles, hawks and falcons can be seen over the mountains of Petra and Wadi Rum where they take advantage of the desert's heat to store energy.

READING

4 Look at the photo. What do you think the text will be about?

5 Read the text and check your answer.

Since ancient times, pearls have been among of the most valuable jewels – almost as valuable as diamonds. However, pearls differ from these gemstones in several ways.

5 In fact, they are not really stones at all.

Unlike diamonds and emeralds, pearls haven't been dug out of the earth. They come from the sea, and are mainly found in tropical oceans. A pearl is created in the 10 stomach of a living sea creature, the oyster.

When some sand gets inside the shell of an oyster, the oyster covers this area of its shell with layers of a mineral called mother-of-pearl. They harden and produce a pearl. It 15 doesn't sparkle like a diamond, but it has a beautiful, silky finish.

In 1894 CE, Kokichi Mikimoto, a Japanese businessman, discovered a way to make pearls. He put a small natural mother-of-pearl 'bead' into a living oyster shell. The 20 oyster began to cover the 'bead' with more layers of mother-of-pearl, and eventually the bead became a pearl.

After this, the Japanese pearl manufacturing
25 industry grew rapidly. Now it's possible to produce millions of pearls all the time. Many of these pearls look just as beautiful as natural pearls but they are much cheaper. Natural pearls are far too expensive for 30 anyone except the richest people!

6 Answer the following questions.

1 How are pearls different from diamonds?

2 What kind of ocean produces pearl oysters?

3 What causes an oyster to start producing mother-of-pearl minerals?

4 When were the first manufactured pearls created?

5 How were they created?

6 How are natural pearls different from manufactured pearls?

WRITING: A PRESENTATION

9 Write notes for a presentation describing some 21st century objects.

Museums contain objects that tell us a lot about the lives of people long ago. Make a list of everyday objects that will tell future generations about life in the 21st century in Jordan. Include a short description of each object and why you chose it (what does it tell people about your lifestyle / culture?). Think of objects representing:

everyday life at home

entertainment

jewellery and clothing

education

sports and hobbies

10 Imagine a time in the future. You are giving a presentation to a group of students about the objects from the 21st century. Write the presentation. Describe the objects and say what they were used for, how they were used and what they tell us about the lives of people in the 21st century.

READING

7 Look at the first paragraph of the text. What theory do you think the text is going to explore?

8 Read the text and check your answers.

Do you want to improve your study skills or write a book? Do you want to become a distinguished student? Surrounding yourself with the right colour might help!

⁵ The question of the effect colour has on the brain has always amazed scientists. Many have witnessed that red makes people feel stronger and more powerful, specifically the deep red colour.

¹⁰ In a study, researchers at a top university carried out tests on 600 people to see how well they used their skills. They were trying to test their hypothesis that the colour red or blue affects us in different ways.

¹⁵ The findings showed that people could remember details better when they looked at images against a red background, for example, a computer screen. On the other hand, they were able to be more creative ²⁰ when the background colour was blue.

The hypothesis is that red, which is connected with emergency and warning (fire engines, traffic lights, etc.), makes people feel more alert, and so they are ²⁵ able to pay attention to detail. Blue is a relaxing colour, which helps to bring out people's creativity.

9 Answer the following questions.

1 How did scientists carry out their research?

2 According to the report's findings, which would be a better background colour for someone revising for a science test? Why?

3 According to the report's findings, which would be a better background for someone writing a poem? Why?

4 Why do people respond to red with more focus and attention to detail?

5 What type of red is likely to make people feel stronger and more powerful?

6 Do you agree with the research you have read about? Why?

VOCABULARY

Travel Review

Trip of a Lifetime

If you decide to travel on a boat trip to the Red Sea, it will be the trip of a lifetime. I spent five days there on a ship with professional divers and visitors just 5 like me, and it's been one of the best experiences of my life.

One place I would recommend, if you plan on diving, is Aqaba in Jordan because it is one of the most popular
 10 dive destinations in the world. If you go to the Red Sea reefs, you'll be able to see more than 200 soft and hard corals. Those reefs are the main source of food and shelter for the diverse wildlife
 15 that lives there, which includes a lot of different species of marine animals such as jellyfish, sponges and sea turtles.

If you are the kind of person who loves beautiful scenery, then you won't want 20 to leave this place, especially that the water is exceptionally clear. So, if you have the time and money, you should really visit the Red Sea.

- 8 Find words in the text with the following meanings:

- 1 living creatures in the area _____
- 2 a soft marine animal _____
- 3 a large marine animal that has a shell and flippers _____
- 4 a journey on a ship or boat _____
- 5 an animal that has the same name as something used for washing and cleaning _____

- 9 Are these sentences true (T) or false (F)? Correct the false sentences.

- 1 The Arctic is one of the most popular dive destinations. ☐

- 2 People who love beautiful scenery won't like the journey. ☐

- 3 The Red Sea reefs are home to more than 200 soft and hard corals. ☐

- 4 The water at the Red Sea is very clean and clear. ☐

- 5 Coral reefs aren't a necessity for the survival of marine animals. ☐

VOCABULARY

- 10 Complete the text about leopard seals with the nouns and adjectives from the box.

fat flippers frozen penguins

Leopard Seals are the largest of the true Antarctic seals. They can grow to over 3 metres and weigh, on average, 540 kilogrammes. They are usually found on pack ice, but they also spend a lot of their time around the breeding grounds of (1) _____ – their main food. Their smooth, flat (2) _____ bodies are well adapted to their natural environment in several ways:

- Like most other seals, they keep warm in the (3) _____ Antarctic with a thick layer of (4) _____ under their skins.
- They have wide, flat (5) _____ that they use like arms to help them swim more powerfully. The bones on these body parts are very long, and the skin between them is (6) _____ like the feet of a bird.

WRITING

- 11 Imagine that you are thinking about going on an Antarctic holiday. Complete the questions in the Second Conditional.

- 1 who / take with you?
- 2 how long / stay?
- 3 when / go?
- 4 what / do there?

1 If you went on an Antarctic holiday, who would you take with you?

2 _____

3 _____

4 _____

Now answer the questions using the Second Conditional.

1 If I went on an Antarctic holiday, I would take my friends Abla and Mariam.

2 _____

3 _____

4 _____

GRAMMAR

- 12 Write sentences using the Second Conditional.

1 If I (read) more English books / my vocabulary (improve).

2 I (ask) for help / if I (can't) do my homework.

3 If you (have) more time / you (do) more sports?

4 If I (go) to Wadi Rum / I definitely (take) my camera.

WRITING: AN EMAIL OF ADVICE

- 13 A friend wants to visit Jordan. Write some advice for your friend about things you would or wouldn't do if you were him / her. Complete the sentences in the Second Conditional.
If I were you, I'd ...

If you came in summer / winter, you'd see / be able to ...

If I were you, I'd bring ...

One place I'd definitely visit, if I were you, is ...

- 14 Use the advice in exercise 13 to write an email of advice to your friend. Use the Second Conditional where appropriate.

After reading Hamid's notes, what conclusion can you come up with? Justify your answer.

READING

8 Read the text and answer the questions.

The nine beautiful islands of Tuvalu, in the Pacific Ocean, have always been at a very low sea level. They are only just above the surface of the ocean now, but the sea is rising every year.

Tropical storms on the island have begun to get much worse since the 1980s. Rising sea waters cause floods. The floods are destructive – turning whole villages into lakes.

- 5 One of the problems is that the sea water is making the land too salty, so it is impossible to grow any crops.

This natural disaster has caused a feeling of sadness in the hearts of many, and experts believe it was caused by climate change. They think the problem is going to get worse. These tiny islands will disappear completely unless we can stop global warming.

- 10 The Tuvalans face a difficult dilemma. If they stay in Tuvalu, their lives will be in danger and their resources will no longer become sufficient. However if they leave, they will suffer deeply: Tuvalu is the only home they have ever known.

- 1 Why are the islands of Tuvalu under threat?

- 2 What will happen to the islands if global warming continues?

- 3 How do tropical storms affect the island?

- 4 What is the effect of flooding on people's food supply?

- 5 What are the two options that the Tuvalan people have?

READING

7 Read about volcanoes and choose the correct answers.

There are around 1,510 'active' volcanoes in the world. We currently know of 80 or more which are under the oceans. When these volcanoes erupt, they can cause tsunamis, floods and earthquakes.

5 Around 1.5 million years ago, some of the youngest volcanoes in Jordan were active. Back then, these volcanoes – like all other volcanoes – exploded when their top split open and the magma, under huge pressure inside the earth, bubbled up and erupted through the crack.

The many eruptions that happened back then resulted in the hardened lava that, today, covers almost 17% of Jordan. This cover is referred to as basalt. If you would like to see this basalt cover, you must visit the North Arabian basalt plateau, which covers an area of about 11,000 10 square kilometres in the northeast of Jordan.

At present, more than 40 volcanic centres can be easily found in Jordan. The northeastern part of Jordan is the best destination for visiting volcanoes. An example of a complete and undamaged volcano that can be seen from Azraq is Jabal Aritayn, Safawi. Luckily, these natural Jordanian volcanoes are now safe and no longer active.

1 What happens to the magma when the top of a volcano splits open?

- a It bubbles up and erupts.
- b It stays inside the volcano.
- c It turns into ashes.

2 What covers almost 17% of Jordan today?

- a magma
- b crust
- c basalt

3 What happened to the volcanoes in Jordan?

- a They disappeared.
- b They are no longer active.
- c They exploded.

4 How many natural volcanoes can still be found in Jordan today?

- a more than 80
- b more than 40
- c none

5 Which one is an example of a volcano in Jordan?

- a Azraq
- b the North Arabian basalt plateau
- c Jabal Aritayn

READING

8 Read the text and answer the questions.

What is medical tourism? It is when people leave their country and travel to foreign countries in order to receive medical treatment and cures for their health problems. For more than 30 years, Jordan has been a well-known medical tourism destination. Today, it is considered to be the first in the Middle East and fifth in the world for several reasons.

One important reason why medical travellers choose Jordan as their destination is because treatment there can cost 10-30% less than that in the United States. Also, most nationalities do not require a visa to enter the Jordanian borders, and this is a great advantage to most travellers.

Moreover, hospitals and medical centres offer treatments for simple diseases, such as headaches and flu, as well as major ones, such as heart and respiratory problems. Another type of treatment they offer is their touristic resorts, which might be a great benefit to patients. The main preferred ones are found at the Dead Sea, mainly because of their use of its therapeutic waters and mud.

Along with many other reasons, the above ones are good enough to prove that medical tourism in Jordan brings together health, fun and savings.

1 In your own words, describe what medical tourism is.

2 List three reasons why Jordan is chosen as a medical tourism destination.

3 Why are the resorts at the Dead Sea mostly preferred?

4 Do you agree that medical tourism in Jordan is healthy, fun and affordable? Why?

Ulugh Beg was a brilliant astronomer, and also a king. He was born in the year 1394 in Sultaniyya, now in Iran. Astronomers didn't have good equipment then, but Ulugh Beg studied the stars at night. Without a telescope, he made a list of 994 important stars.

Ulugh Beg's grandfather was Timur, a great soldier and king. Timur was the king of a big part of the Middle East and India. As a boy, Ulugh Beg travelled with his grandfather and saw many different places. When his grandfather died, Ulugh Beg went to live in Samarkand, now in Uzbekistan.

In 1411, when he was only 17, Ulugh Beg became king. He was an intelligent young man. He built a university in Samarkand and invited great Islamic astronomers to come and study there.

Ulugh Beg also studied Mathematics. He proved that one year is more than 365 days – actually about 365.26 days.

READING

SAVE OUR GLACIERS!

Glaciers are vast rivers of slowly moving ice that have created the landscape of Earth for thousands of years. They are so heavy that they are extremely powerful. Glaciers contain 75% of the world's fresh water, which is more than all the lakes, rivers and water in the atmosphere, combined! They also create icebergs when ice breaks off them and goes into the sea.

Where do you think these huge rivers of ice are? Well, they are in the Arctic and the Antarctic, of course; but they are also in countries such as the USA, Switzerland and New Zealand. They are becoming popular as exciting geographical tourist destinations, especially in Alaska and New Zealand, where parks and hotels have been built to hold the thousands of tourists that visit the glaciers every year. Franz Josef glacier, a beautiful ice river on the South Island of New Zealand, is one of these.

Glaciers are also important to the environment because if all the glaciers in the world melted, the sea would rise 70 metres. So they need to be protected! What could be done to save them?

1 Read the article above. Are these sentences true or false? Correct the false sentences. (½ mark each)

- 1 Glaciers do not move fast. ☐
 - 2 There are glaciers in England. ☐
 - 3 Glaciers are unpopular with tourists. ☐

Module 2

UNIT 1

The Present Perfect with yet and already.

- We use the Present Perfect with yet to describe a period of time up till now. We use yet in negative sentences, to talk about something that hasn't happened at the moment of speaking.
I haven't found a topic for my project yet.
- We use subject + hasn't / haven't + the past participle + yet. Used in this way, yet is placed at the end of a sentence.
Sarah hasn't bought the bread yet.
They haven't saved the rainforests yet.
- We also use yet in questions, to ask if something has happened.
Have you found your keys yet?
Have you called your friend to check on him yet?
- We use the Present Perfect with already to talk about something that happened and was completed before the moment of speaking.
Logging has already begun in the area.
- We use subject + has / have + already + the past participle. The contractions 's and 've are often used.
The loggers have already destroyed a lot of trees.
Nader has already travelled to England.

UNIT 2

Modal verbs of possibility: must, might, could, can't.

- We use various modal verbs to talk about degrees of certainty and uncertainty and to speculate about possibilities and impossibilities.
- We use must to talk about relative certainty.
It must be diamond!
There must be some cheese in the fridge.
- We use could to talk about possibility, including strong possibility or probability.
It could be someone who looks like her.
It could be amber. Amber has many different colours.
- We use might to talk more speculatively about things about which there is less certitude, only some degree of possibility.
It might be ruby because it is a hard precious stone.
She might be at the library. She always goes there after school.
- We use cannot (can't) to talk about impossibility or negative certainty.
It can't be amber because amber is found in northern Europe.
Yes, it can't be emerald because emeralds are green.

Module 3

UNIT 3

The Present Continuous

- We use the Present Continuous to talk about what is happening now.
I am baking a cake.
- We use the Present Continuous with always, when we talk about repeated actions, to show annoyance.
Sami and Nabil are always arguing.

UNIT 4

State and dynamic verbs

- Dynamic verbs, such as walk, talk, do, go, eat, drink, shop, run and watch, describe actions and activities. They can be used in both the Present Simple and the Present Continuous depending on the context.
Biologists explain that when we do exercise, the cells in our body need more oxygen.
At the moment, our teacher is explaining an exercise.
- State verbs, such as be, like, love, hate, know, think, believe, remember, forget, need, want, see, hear and feel, describe states, opinions and feelings, and they usually appear in the Present Simple. This is because they are used to describe fairly permanent, rather than transient, states.
Professor Allen is an environmental scientist.
Science answers many questions we like to ask.
We see lightning before we hear thunder.
Do you know that lightning is hotter than the sun?
When do you feel happy?
- Some verbs can be both state and dynamic. They would have one meaning when they are state and another meaning when they are dynamic.

I think Faisal is a very generous man. (to have an opinion)

I am thinking about my final exams. (to have a thought in my head)

I have a new school bag. (to own)

I am having difficulty with the new maths lesson. (to experience)

Module 4

UNIT 5

The Second Conditional

- We use the Second Conditional to talk about imaginary, impossible or unlikely situations, either in the present or the future. It is often used to express the opposite of what is true.
If I saw a polar bear, I'd take a lot of photographs. (But the fact is that I didn't see a polar bear, so this is impossible.)
If I won a lot of money, I'd go on an Arctic boat trip. (Not impossible, but extremely unlikely.)
If I travelled to the Arctic in winter, I would experience severe snowstorms. (But the truth is that I haven't travelled to the Arctic in winter.)
- We form the Second Conditional with If + Past Simple, would / wouldn't + infinitive. In spoken or informal English, we use 'd for would.
If I won a lot of money, I'd go on a Red Sea boat trip.
- In the Second Conditional, we can put either the situation or the consequence first. If the situation comes first, we use a comma.
If you went there in winter, you would probably experience severe snowstorms.
You would be unlucky if you didn't see any seals.

UNIT 6

Making suggestions

- There are several ways that we can make suggestions, either directly or indirectly. We can do this directly by putting forward an idea, that is, by making a statement.
Let's book the tickets today.
This approach invites a response, such as simple agreement or the putting forward of a different suggestion.
That's a great idea!
Yes, that sounds like a good idea.
No, that's too slow. Let's fly.
- When we make direct suggestions, the verb form used is the infinitive.
Let's go camping in Wadi Rum.
Let's book the holiday.
- We can make suggestions indirectly in the form of a question that is really a disguised proposal.
Why don't we visit somewhere different this year?
How about going to Canada?
Shall we go to Canada this year?
- When we make indirect suggestions through questions, different verb forms are used – either the infinitive or the -ing form.
Why don't we go skiing in Lebanon?
How about going on holiday to Jordan?
Shall we go mountain climbing in Switzerland?

Will / Won't and shall

- We use will and won't + infinitive to talk about future plans.
We will hire a car.
You won't have time to visit Toronto.
- We use shall to make suggestions or ask questions.
We shall meet so that I show you my photographs.
Shall I call you when I get home?

- We put will (or shall) before the subject to form the interrogative.
Will they take the train?
Shall we take a guidebook?
- To ask questions about the future, we may put a question word at the beginning of the question.
How will you travel to Malaysia?
How shall we manage without money?

Module 5

UNIT 7

Defining relative clauses

- Defining relative clauses are used to identify which particular person, place or thing is being talked about. The defining relative clause is usually connected to the main clause by a relative pronoun such as who, which, that, where or when. We use who (and sometimes that) to refer to people; which and that to refer to things and animals; where to refer to places and when to times. Whose is the possessive form of who.
They affect the people who inhabit the region.
An iceberg is a huge piece of ice which floats in the ocean.
Areas that have a tundra climate include Russia and North America.
Places where there is a tropical climate are near the Equator.
The months when heavy rain falls follow months of dry weather.
He's the man whose daughter I met in Jordan.

UNIT 8

Non-defining relative clauses

- Non-defining relative clauses are used to give more detail about a particular person, place or thing that is being talked about. The non-defining relative clause (underlined in the examples below) is usually connected to the main clause by a relative pronoun such as who, which, where or when. We use who to refer to people; which to refer to things and animals; where to refer to places and when to times. Whose is the possessive form of who.
Geologists, who study Earth's rocks and how they formed, can 'read' layers of rock.
In the Antarctic, where plants and animals face a harsh cold environment, archaeologists have found evidence that this area was once much warmer.
Humans, whose activities cause global warming, need to take action.
The Sahara desert, which is in Africa, is very hot.
Several ice ages, when glaciers covered much of Earth's surface, have taken place.
- A non-defining relative clause differs from a defining relative clause in that it gives additional, rather than essential, information and, without it, the sentence would still convey meaning.
Geologists can 'read' layers of rock.
In the Antarctic, archaeologists have found evidence that this area was once much warmer.
- Non-defining relative clauses follow a noun and are enclosed between two commas (or dashes or brackets), unless completing the sentence.
Archaeologists have found fossils of trees in parts of Antarctica, which prove that this area was much warmer 110 million years ago than it is today.
- In non-defining relative clauses, the relative pronoun is never omitted.

Module 6

UNIT 9

The Present Simple Passive

- We use the Present Simple Passive when an action, idea or opinion is more important than the person or thing that does or has it (the agent). In such cases, we either don't know, or are not interested in the identity of the agent.
The Alhambra Palace is located in Granada, Spain.
Walls are designed with detailed plasterwork.
- We also use the Present Simple Passive to describe a process, where, again, we either don't know or are not interested in who carries out the process.
Rice is grown in China.
Bread is made at a bakery.
- We form the Present Simple Passive with subject + am/is/are + the past participle of the verb. Am/is/are are often contracted to 'm/'s/'re.
The palace is situated on a hill overlooking beautiful rivers.
The ring is designed with diamonds.
- We form the negative of the Present Simple Passive with subject + am/is/are + not + the past participle of the verb. Am/is/are + not are usually contracted to 'm not/isn't/aren't.
The 'Mona Lisa' isn't displayed in Rome.
- We form questions in the Present Simple Passive by changing the word order. We may also use a question word.
Is it made of metal?
Where is rice grown?
- When it is important to mention the person or thing that did the action, we use by.
It is visited by tourists from all over the world.

UNIT 10

The Past Simple Passive

- We use the Past Simple Passive when an action or idea is more important than the person or thing that did or imagined it (the agent). In such cases, we either don't know, or are not interested in the identity of the agent.

During his lifetime, Leonardo was admired and greatly respected.

His notebooks were filled with drawings of many things.

- We also use the Past Simple Passive to describe a process, where, again, we either don't know or are not interested in who carried out the process.

When he died in 1519 CE, Leonardo wasn't understood.

- We form the Past Simple Passive with subject + was / were + the past participle.

Leonardo was also very interested in machines.

His works were not really understood.

- We form the negative of the Past Simple Passive with subject + was / were + not + the past participle of the verb. Was / were + not are usually contracted to wasn't / weren't.

Leonardo wasn't understood.

Many of his paintings weren't finished.

- We form questions in the Past Simple Passive by changing the order of the words. We may also use a question word.

Who was Sunflowers painted by?

When was the painting finished?

- When it is important to mention the person or thing that did the action, we use by.

Sunflowers was painted by Van Gogh.

The Mona Lisa was painted by Leonardo da Vinci.
